Write:OutLoud is the easy-to-use yet powerful talking word processor with a talking spell checker. This award-winning program helps get classwork done and makes students enjoy writing. Listening to words encourages reluctant writers and eliminates their frustration and reluctance. Write:OutLoud gives students the satisfaction and success that motivates them to write more and want to write.

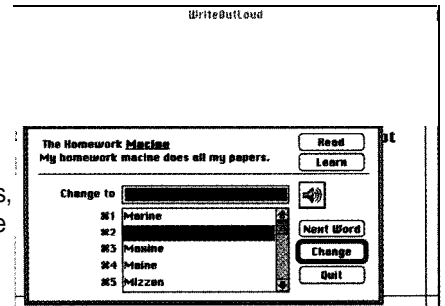

- ⇒ Simplifies word processing so students can concentrate on writing
- ⇒ Lets auditory learners produce and succeed
- ⇒ Enables students to express themselves and share with the class
- ⇒ Provides a flexible tool that supports your instructional goals

Talking words make better writers

Write:OutLoud's multisensory approach improves writing because students immediately hear if words are omitted or misplaced. The auditory cues give struggling students positive reinforcement.

- ⇒ Speaks as students type or reads text aloud after typing
- ⇒ Highlights each word as it speaks it to show the direct correlation between written and spoken words
- ⇒ Lets students listen to choose the right words and revise word choices, spellings and sequence
- ⇒ Offers many speaking options to match students learning needs

- ⇒ Supports peer revision in your classroom

SUCCESS STORY

Heather & Write:OutLoud

Heather, 12-year-old 6th grader, uses Write:OutLoud to get her regular school and homework assignment done quickly and easily. "She is getting work done as fast as anyone else," says Heather's grandmother and advocate, Kay Hickey. Heather checks her spelling and listens to sentences as she writes. She uses a big font to see letters on the screen better and the speech feedback to hear when she has pressed a key in error. Heather carries a PowerBook to school, so Write:OutLoud goes with her now, too. She gets her work done quickly and is proud of what she accomplishes. And as Kay tells, "Write:OutLoud has increased her excitement for school."
